Angered by the arrest of one of their number, after they had given rip-roaring "send-off" to the Red and Blue football eleven, bound to New for its clash with Dartmouth, 1000 University of Pennsylvania stu-dents this morning stormed City Hall, and demanded the release of the prisoner.

During the protest demonstration other arrests of students were made.

The first clash with the police occurred at Nineteenth and Market streets as the classmen were "snakedancing" along Market street. It was at that point that John C. Howell, eighteen years old, of Atlantic City, one of the atudents, was arrested.

The trouble was precipitated when Mounted Patrolman Frank Buehler, son of Lieutenant Buehler of the traffic squad, tried to clear a cluster of students away from a stalled trolley car.

Beuhler's horse backed suddenly and struck an automobile. The patrolman was thrown to the street. The college men, it is said, laughed at the mishap and taunted Buehler. According to the students, the bluecont struck one student and then placed Howell under

In the eastward rush of the crowd after that first arrest the students surrounded two women, one with a baby in her arms, who were about to cross Market street at Seventeenth. Witnesses said the encircling line about the women plainly wanted to shield them from the rush. But one woman became frightened and fainted. She was revived on the sidewalk. The other woman clasped her baby tightly to her and gradually made her way across the street.

All the enthusiasm engendered by the "send-off" to the team, the greatest demonstration since before the war, turned into resentment against the Trailed for three weeks by City D.

Mr. Smith referred the students to Superintendent of Police Robinson, in the east corridor of City Hall. Into that office they tumbled pell-mell, and then, learning that the captive student was on the sixth floor, raced up there.

MINERS' SIX-HOUR DAY MEANS ONLY 5 HOURS' ACTUAL COAL DIGGING

TO LABOR LEADERS Colonel McCain Explains "Bank-to-Bank" Clause in Demand as Presented to the Operators

> PHYSICAL IMPOSSIBILITY TO KEEP PRODUCTION UP TO ANYWHERE NEAR NORMAL UNDER SUCH CONDITIONS

> > By GEORGE NOX McCAIN

Staff Correspondent of the Evening Public Ledger Copyright, 1919, by Public Ledger Co. Pittsburgh, Nov. 7 .- It is an attempt to secure not a six, but a fivehour working day. The basic demand of the striking coal miners, to which all other demands are secondary and subordinated, is a working day of six hours and five days a week. The question of a wage increase of 60 per cent is a side issue; it can be adjusted.

If this demand for decreased working time is granted, it will mean the permanent closing of thousands of industrial establishments, the throttling of commercial advancement. It would, in reality, bring about as nearly as possible to conceive a condition of industrial anarchy.

The more closely this scheme for reduced hours of employment is con sidered the more sinister does it appear, the more glaringly is its revolutionary character revealed. Only the operators and minera themselves thus far have been familiar with the finished details of this master stroke that a settlement of the strike could also be reached if the government enforced be reached if the government enforced legal measures against the strike. He also again called attention to what he said would be the effect of "government by injunction" upon organized labor.

The third party in interest, the sultimate victim, the "goat," so to speak, this careless slip-and-go-easy American public, has only a superficial knowledge of the situation. It accepts general statements from both ficial knowledge of the situation. It accepts general statements from both sides, miners and operators, at their superficial value and lets it go at that.

The labor leaders' visit to Mr. Palmer occurred shortly before the latter went to a special cabinet meeting called by Secretary Lansing to discuss the hituminous coal strike in particular and that six hours per day means only five hours' actual honest work, or that six hours per day means only five hours' actual honest work, or twenty-five hours per week, it is time for this foolish, self-deceived, confiding public to perk up, rub its eyes and notice things. liminary to the ending of the strike and the negotiation of a new agreement between the miners and operators.

Officials said that the government's offer to arbitrate the controversy as soon as the strike order, was withdrawn still was open and that unless it was accepted and the strike ended there was no course for the government except to press the court action begun at Indianapolis.

Officials in direct touch with the strike situation apparently were preparing for a prolonged shutdown of the mines. While the railroad administration's central committee would not divulge details of its work, members admitted that arrangements were being made for full conservation of fuels if the strike becomes a 'bitter end' fight.

This move will materially affect the movement of commodities needed by European nations in reconstruction work, but officials said the emergency demands of the United States must be the first consideration.

Alarm Over Shortage

From some points stories of alarm were heard over the low supply of coal, and in these cases consignments of the fuel were ordered dispatched speedily. No actual suffering was believed imminent, but the government was convinced

There are thousands of men employed in coal mines who are paid by the day or month and not by the ton as are the miners. They were formerly paid for eight hours' work. Under the new arrangement, if it ever goes into effect, they will be paid for six hours, although they will actually work only five.

In five hours the men must do work which formerly required eight hours, if the contention is true that a miner can dig as much in five as he can in eight hours. The fact is that it can not be done. It is camouflage and when all is said it will be an extremely obtuse, dull-witted and short-sighted public that fails to observe that this simply means cutting the coal supply in half with all its attendant loss and missery to the nation at large.

Another angle of this strike situation is that the overhead charges of the coff of the president's suite will include M. Pichon, minister of foreign affairs: M.
